Ed FitzGerald

- Ed FitzGerald is a husband, father and lifelong public servant.
- He worked his way through The Ohio State University and evening law school and became a Special Agent with the FBI, taking an oath to serve the public and to put people first – a commitment that has shaped his adult life.
- As an FBI Agent, Ed was assigned to the Organized Crime Task Force in Chicago, investigating political corruption and Mafia influence, helping to bring the infamous Cicero crime syndicate to justice.
- After his FBI service, Ed returned to Ohio, serving as an assistant county prosecutor and eventually Mayor of Lakewood.
- As Mayor, Ed made government smaller and more efficient while still making major investments in public safety and job creation.
 - Under Ed's leadership, Lakewood was recognized as one of the best places in Ohio to raise a family.
- Ed was elected the first Cuyahoga County Executive, following one of the largest public corruption scandals in Ohio's history.
 - He restored the public's trust by implementing tough ethics laws and significantly reducing the size of government.
- With the millions saved by his reforms, he made ground-breaking investments in real job creation, expanded pre-school enrollment and is establishing the largest college savings account program in the country to foster a culture of high education in Ohio.
